

Major Cost Submission Template

Replace the bracketed text with your lesson content.

Lesson title: [Title]

Selected track: [Track]

Learning objectives

Objective: [What will students be able to do?]

Additional objective: [What other skill will they demonstrate?]

The financial concept

Key idea: [Explain the concept and any terms students need.]

Worked example: [Show the figures and calculation steps. Include units and assumptions where needed.]

Decision: [Explain the choice this information helps someone make.]

This is a possible way of how you could illustrate how the lesson works. Depending on the track, this could look different. BE CREATIVE.

Student activity

Situation: [Describe the case. Give students the facts and figures they need to make a decision.]

Task: [Explain what students should calculate, compare, or decide.]

Group response: [State what students will present or submit and what evidence they should include.]

The ethical dilemma

Stakeholder: [Name and what they could gain or lose.]

Stakeholder: [Name and what they could gain or lose.]

Stakeholder: [Name and what they could gain or lose.]

This section is meant to introduce different perspectives around the topic of your class. Simply state those perspectives. This fulfills the requirements for perspectives, stakeholders, and an ethical dilemma, though your lesson does not have to follow this exact format.

Assessment or exit ticket

Concept question: [Ask students to explain or apply the financial concept.]

Decision question: [Ask students to justify a decision and consider how it affects the key stakeholders.]

This is an example of illustrating the expected student takeaway, though other forms of presentation are also acceptable.

Sources and AI disclosure (Not Counted Towards Page Count—Separate Document)

Sources: [Organization or author, title, date, and link]

AI use: [Name the tool, explain how you used it, and identify the affected parts. Describe how your team checked the results.]

If your team used no generative AI, state that.